

Wolfville

Alfred Henry Lewis was a lawyer, politician, wandering cowboy, and Hearst journalist. His writing provides insight into the life of real cowboys. Wolfville is a Southwestern town and the location for several books by Lewis. Some of its colorful inhabitants are Jaybird Bob and Slim Jim, Mace Bowman, Pion Bill, and Tucson Jennie. Wolfville is a town where no questions are asked. Outlaws, lawmen mule-skinners and runaways all drink in the same saloon. Justice comes in the form of a gun and the hangmans noose. This sequel to Wolfville Days includes Wolfvilles first funeral -- The Stinging Lizard -- The story of Wilkins -- The washwomans war -- Enrights pard, Jim Willis -- Tucson Jennies heart -- Tucson Jennies jealousy -- The man from Red Dog -- Cherokee Hall -- Texas Thompsons election -- A Wolfville foundling -- The man from Yellowhouse -- Jacks up on eights -- The rival dance-halls -- Slim Jims sister -- Jaybird Bobs joke -- Boggss experience -- Dawson & Rudd, partners -- Mace Bowman, sheriff -- A Wolfville Thanksgiving -- Bill Hoskinss coon -- Old Sam Enrights romance -- Pinon Bills bluff -- Crawfish Jim.
