

Forgive the Moon

A provocative new voice in womens fiction, Maryanne Stahl presents a compelling story of a woman haunted by loss-and struggling to find a new place in the world. When Amanda Kincaid comes to Long Island for her familys annual beach vacation, she cant help but reflect on the many recent-and significant-changes in her life. Her mother has passed away after years of mental illness. Her marriage is falling apart. And her beloved daughter has just left for college. But when Amanda meets a doctor whos summering nearby, long-forgotten passions ignite-and a new season of her life begins... Stahl takes us to the beach for only a week-but she shows us a lifetime of longing. (Rita Ciresi, author of Pink Slip and Sometimes I Dream in Italian)
