

Maggies Tale (The Murphy-Arcadelt Chronicles Book 1)

Its the year 1900. The Salvation Army has opened its work in the market town of Erlingford, and two maids-of-all-work, Maggie Murphy and Lucy Wibberley attend one of its meetings and become swept into its activities. But they like their fellow-staff members have been forbidden to have anything to do with the salvationists, who are not considered respectable, and immediately lose their positions. They wish to become full-time officers in the organisation, and Lucys application is accepted. She enters training and in due course is appointed to Jamaica where she helps run a childrens home. For Maggie, who can hardly read or write, and who is told by the Armys Chief of the Staff, Mr Bramwell Booth, to make further application when she had improved her education, things do not run smoothly.
