Don't Take Your Love Away: Holding onto forever means loving you no matter what and yet I find myself fighting for our love longing for you to do the same.

The best friend finally got the girl and for a while they seemed to be happy until the man that broke her heart began stalking her. He thought that this would entice her back into his arms but how wrong he was. The best friend grew angry that the girl was being stalked but their love for each other only grew stronger. The man became angry and decided to resort to drastic measure in order to show the girl that she belonged with him. She was distraught when the best friend became involved in an accident. She sat by the bed of her best friend watching helplessly as she prayed for their survival. The odds were stacked against them and for a time it looked like the happy ending that the girl had longed for was now lost to her. The man watched how she broke and he knew that he'd lost her forever despite everything he had done to win her over. She was head over heels in love with the best friend. Would the best friend fight for the girl or was their happily ever after just a fantasy?
